

The 7th European Research Conference

Changing configurations of adult education in transitional times

September 4-7, 2013

Humboldt-University
Department of Adult Education and Continuing Education
Berlin, Germany

ESREA holds a triennial European research conference. The conferences have been held in Strobl 1995, in Bruxelles 1998, in Lisbon 2001, in Wrocław 2004, in Seville 2007, and in Linköping 2010.

It will be held in Berlin in 2013. The conference is 2013 co-funded by DFG (Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft)

ESREA

European Society for Research on the Education of Adults

Changing configurations of adult education in transitional times

Adult education is changing. The concept of lifelong learning has been moved to the foreground in political agendas in Europe with significant implications for research. New goals are set. New actors and institutions are now engaging in adult education. New forms of teaching, learning and counseling are observable. These forms are often merged into various hybrid configurations, building on past configurations. The established concepts of adult education have not been replaced, but merged with new concepts of lifelong learning.

The conference theme wants to stimulate critical research-focused discussions about the developments of adult education on national and European levels. How do we perceive scientifically these developments and their wider meaning? Where do we come from and where do we go with adult education? Which mechanisms of exclusion and inclusion can be observed? Why are we moving into these directions? What are the gains and losses? Which role does research presently play and what should be researchers' contributions? How can transitions and changing configurations be analyzed?

About ESREA

ESREA is a European scientific society aimed at providing a European-wide forum for all researchers engaged in research focused on the education of adults and adult learning. ESREA promotes research through network meetings, seminars and conferences, a triennial research conference and through publications. Membership of ESREA is open to individuals and institutions. Members benefit from reduced registration fees for ESREA conferences and also receive the ESREA newsletter several times each year.

The Department of Adult Education and Continuing Education at Humboldt-University Berlin

The Department of Adult Education and Continuing Education at Humboldt-University Berlin is hosting the triennial ESREA conference in 2013. Prof. Aiga von Hippel is head of the department and junior Prof. Bernd Käpplinger belongs to the staff as almost 20 more people. Prof. Wiltrud Gieseke is senior professor and had been head of the department until April 2013. Prof. Otfried Schäffter had been member of the department and was also a senior professor until 2011. The department is involved in four different study programmes at bachelor and mostly master level in the fields of educational science, adult education and health professions education. The fields of research are mirroring the plurality of Adult and Continuing Education, but concentrating around professionalization, programme planning/programme analysis, participation, guidance/counselling, vocational training, cultural education and comparative research.

A nationally and internationally almost unique feature is the programme archive for adult and continuing education Berlin-Brandenburg founded by Prof. Wiltrud Gieseke. It documents programmes of almost 700 different providers in Berlin-Brandenburg at least since 1995. For more information: <http://ebwb.hu-berlin.de/wbpa>

Conference venue

The conference building, in which all keynotes and sessions will be, is located in the 'Seminargebäude am Hegelplatz' at Humboldt University Berlin right in the historical city centre of Berlin. More detailed information: <http://ebwb.hu-berlin.de/aktuelles/esrea/conference-site>
Postal Address: Dorotheenstraße 24, 10117 Berlin

Conference venue 'Seminargebäude am Hegelplatz' (outside and Foyer)

Conference formats

Keynotes and plenary sessions

Almost every day will start with stimulating insights and impulses of a key note from one of three distinguished scholars in the field of Adult Education.

The conference will start and end with plenary sessions. The final plenary session at the last day will reflect on the conference topic and the experiences made during the conference out of the perspective of scholars at different phases within their academic career and from different backgrounds.

Keynotes will last for one hour.

Parallel sessions (single)

Mostly three papers are assembled and presented in a thematic session.

These sessions will last for two hours.

Parallel sessions (continued)

Mostly five to six papers are assembled and presented in thematic sessions. The 1st part of the session is marked with an 'a'. The 2nd part of the session is marked with a 'b' (e.g. parallel session 9a and 9b)

These sessions will last for four hours with a break after two hours.

Forums

Forum is a new format to ESREA research conferences. It assembles mainly contributions from and about different fields of practice in Berlin. Contributions are demonstrated by means of classical presentations, visual exhibitions and representative material (e.g. programs, posters, typical courses). Thus, you can get deeper impressions how the institutional and organizational landscape of adult and continuing education in Berlin looks like.

The forum 4 gives deeper insights in an ongoing research project about the history of ESREA.

Forums will last for two hours.

Keynotes

Limit experiences: Adult education and commitment in the 21st century

Limit experience is a central notion in diverse theories of adult education. It refers to challenges in the lives of adults that provoke intensive processes of reflection and action, that may result into new directions in the life-course. One of the important challenges I have struggled with, both in theory and in practice, is the paradox of emancipation that characterizes many educational practices. It relates to the question already raised by Immanuel Kant: How shall I cultivate freedom under conditions of compulsion? Educators often aspire the emancipation of their participants, yet, in doing so they again reinforce dependency.

In my presentation, I will explore how different theorists of (adult-)education have dealt with this paradox. I will furthermore argue that the French philosopher Jacques Rancière has developed challenging answers to this question, while creating new perspectives on the meaning of emancipation. In his view, emancipation is not something to be achieved at the end of the educational process, but an assumption to depart from in various educational and arts practices. The inspiration that Rancière has brought, also helps to redefine the meaning of commitment in the future of adult education.

Adult Educational Research and the Politics of Indignation in 'These Times'

My keynote will focus on the challenges for education within the context of a politics of indignation. It will outline some of the major issues characterising manifestations of the politics of indignation in these 'hard' though interesting times in different parts of the globe, notably Europe, North America and the Arab world. It will highlight concerns expressed by indignant protestors in these manifestations who make their presence felt in the globalised squares and cities of these countries (Austria, Greece and Egypt in particular) and highlight alternative adult learning measures that have emerged from these protests and their implications for adult education within movements today.

Adult Education - Lost in a Transition?

The keynote questions the contemporary role of adult education as the field of practice and even more as the scientific discipline. The author criticizes the current dominant discourse about the lifelong learning and adult education as non-authentic and genuine one, but borrowed or imposed by economic discourses.

Using historical examples and analyzing the role adult education played in different historical and socio-economic contexts, author suggests the hypothesis that the science of adult education today gave up asking the most important questions – those about goal, meaning, and values. In the course of transition from postmodernism to post-postmodernism, while the former was slowly losing its power, adult education was losing its critical and/or leading role, becoming unable to answer the biggest challenges of nowadays society – ideological, political, economical, ecological and personal.

While adult education practice is successfully “serving” the paradigms created in other fields, such as productivity, competitiveness, mobility, skillfulness etc, the science of education is powerless when it comes to the policy creation (on national, European and international level), to the tendencies of global development and to global problems. Has adult education lost its identity and its purpose?
